ABOUT THE WORKSHOP:

Education researchers worldwide are recommending "high-dosage" also known as "high-quality" or "high-impact" tutoring as an effective strategy for accelerating learning among students suffering from learning lost due to the pandemic.

With more than 200,000 students reportedly chronically absent in LAUSD due to COVID cases and other impacts, the personalized instruction HDT offers is needed now more than ever.

Agency and school representatives are invited to this workshop for a look at the personalized instruction, assessments, professional development, parent engagement, social-emotional learning, and more for a holistic model that can truly help students achieve significant growth and academic excellence.

ABOUT THE PRESENTER:

Dr. Laurie Inman has been an educator for 39 years, spanning the TK-16 arena, as a teacher, site/district level administrator, literacy coach, and education consultant. Dr. Inman earned her Ed.D. in Educational Leadership at USC and is currently the Interim Director of the College of Education Student Success Center at CSU Dominguez Hills and a board member at the Al Wooten Jr. Youth Center.

ABOUT THE SPONSORS:

This free workshop is sponsored by the Community Response System of South Los Angeles (CRSSLA) in partnership with Al Wooten Jr. Youth Center with support from The Weingart Foundation and Kinecta Federal Credit Union.
